

Monday Night's Municipal Plant Meeting Should Show Need for Additional Study

One of the most important meetings in the economic history of Hope will be held at 7:30 Monday night in city hall. It is an open session of the city council regarding electric power and the people should attend it.

Burns & McDonnell Engineering company of Kansas City, Mo., presented recommendations for a 3-million-dollar 20-year expansion of the municipal electric plant to city officials, both old and new, last Tuesday night — recommendations which this newspaper published the following day.

This coming Monday night the council expects to hear figures on an alternate course, the comparative cost of purchasing part of its power from interconnected companies — and obtain the people's opinion as to what Hope ought to do.

I want to define The Star's position clearly, for whatever it is worth to the public and the city government. Hope ought to:

1. Delay any action whatever on the Burns & McDonnell recommendations until it has obtained an equally authoritative report on what electric power can be purchased for at wholesale by the municipal plant. I understand Hope spent $3,000 for the Burns & McDonnell survey, and it's worth every dollar. But the Prescott municipal plant has just begun purchasing electricity instead of generating it because the purchased power was cheaper. That's something we've got to get the figures on.

2. Hope should send a committee of officials and business men on a tour to survey 1951 operating conditions in municipal electric plants as far east as the state of Mississippi. Whether we generate all or part of our power — or none of it — has no effect whatever on our status as a municipal-plant town. We are "municipal plant" as long as the city government controls the distribution and rates and billing of electricity, regardless of where or how it is generated.

3. Our great objective should be the guarantee of a high-line and transformer station outside the city limits for industrial purposes. Some help is required from the municipal plant if such a station is ever to be acquired — and without such a station it seems to me any prospect of industrial expansion is closed to Hope. The high-line and transformer station proposal is not new. Back in the 1930s this writer met with Thomas Fitzhugh, then proposing a Rural Electrification Administration generating plant for north Louisiana, Mayor Albert Graves, and E. F. McFadden, and it was agreed all of us would publicly support a "standby" power line for the municipal plant. The deal never came off, because the REA plant's location was changed. More recently The Star has been urging the wisdom of tying Hope into the hydro-power project at the Narrows dam, Murfreesboro, where the federal government spent 18 million dollars and where approximately 16,000 KW of electricity is being generated and turned over under federal supervision to Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. for distribution.

4. There is no conflict between a municipal plant's operation and the demand for industrial power. They have nothing to do with each other. In the 22 years I've run this newspaper the industries already here have pretty steadfastly stayed away from the city's power and the city's rates. The Burns & McDonnell report covering the next 20 years proposes to take care of domestic consumers but does nothing for Hope's industries.

5. The Star is for municipal-plant operation, now and always. But whatever we do about the industrial power question it is obvious our city has grown to the point where, like Jonesboro and Conway, the actual control of the plant should be delegated by the city to a city-appointed commission. The details of an electric plant are enormous and require long-term management.

Probers Look Into Shaver's Gambling Luck

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP) — His professed luck at the poker table and in horse race betting was reported today in a senate investigation of Charles E. Shaver, a former senate employee.

Competent sources, declining to be named, told a reporter Shaver's reported winnings are under scrutiny of the senate special investigations subcommittee.

The subcommittee is looking into Shaver's acknowledged role in promoting government loans for certain applicants while he was counsel for two senate groups created to aid small business enterprises. Among other things it is inquiring whether any fees to Shaver were involved in the loan negotiations.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Hoyer (D-Mo.), has seized Shaver's bank account records.

These, the informants said, list deposits "well in excess" of Shaver's $9,300 a year salary from the senate small business committee for which he was counsel until he resigned under fire last October 24.

The sources said Shaver has explained that "a substantial part" of this excess was attributable to consistent winnings at poker and on horse race bets. They said the subcommittee is checking thoroughly into dates, names, and amounts involved in the purported winnings.

Shaver declined to discuss the bank account entries with a reporter. He did say, however, that he received no fees or assistance to any loan seekers.

One industrialist has challenged that statement. At Miami, Henry R. Shaffer told newsmen he paid Shaver $500 on June 24, 1949, for assistance on an application for a $75,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) for the Aluminum Manufacturing Co., of which Shaffer was president. Shaffer said there was an understanding that Shaver would get a larger fee if the loan were granted. The RFC declined the loan application, and Shaffer said

Caudle Ousted in Tax Fraud Investigation

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP) — President Truman's firing of assistant Attorney General Theron Caudle appeared today to be the forerunner of wide-scale charges involving justice department tax fraud prosecutions.

"This is just the beginning," said Rep. King (D-Calif.), chairman of the house ways and means subcommittee, which has been unearthing corruption and misconduct in the internal revenue service.

The president last yesterday fired Caudle as the government's chief prosecutor of tax frauds less than 48 hours after the committee passed along to Mr. Truman information it said it had dug up on Caudle's activities.

Mr. Truman announced Caudle resigned by request because he had "engaged in outside activities" inconsistent with his position as head of the justice department tax division. Presidential Secretary Joseph Short told reporters that "as far as the president knows nothing done has been illegal."

In an emotional interview following the President's announcement from Key West, Fla., Caudle said "my heart is broken."

"I have nothing to hide from anybody," he said of his four years as tax prosecution chief.

Caudle's ouster will have no effect on the King committee's plans to summon him as the star witness in hearings now scheduled for Nov. 26, the Monday following the Thanksgiving weekend.

King told newsmen the hearings would go ahead and Caudle would be subpoenaed as a witness if necessary.

The chairman would not comment on the nature of the information presented Mr. Truman, and presidential Counsel Charles Murphy, by telephone last Wednesday.

King said only that he discussed Caudle with the President, and that later the committee counsel Adrian W. Dewind talked with Murphy.

But he told newsmen he expected the public — and the press —

Fight Over New Race Track May Bring Vote

At Little Rock, Governor McMath's office had sent out letters from the governor requesting the resignation of the present Arkansas racing commission, which approved a franchise for the proposed track.

In the letters, McMath, who bitterly opposed the new track, took a crack at law enforcement here and said a Crittenden county local option election on whether the track should be allowed would be a "farce."

Robert J. Bolleau, West Memphis day of all local citizens opposed to the track in Dixie Downs, Inc., announced that his group would seek to get a local option election in Crittenden county on the new track.

If a majority vote against the proposal, permission to build and operate the track will be invalidated.

The Rev. Aldred Knox, president of the West Memphis Ministerial Alliance, called a meeting for Sunday of all local citizens opposed to the track.

Mr. Knox said strategy to be used against Dixie Downs in the forthcoming election would be planned.

Meanwhile, the Little Rock attorney who guided Dixie Downs' long fight for a franchise to build the track issued a heated reply to Governor McMath.

The commission granted the franchise to Dixie Downs Thursday despite the objections of the governor and about 60 east Arkansas residents who were present at the hearing.

Attorney Glenn Walther said "if the governor's going to try to throw out every commission which incurs his displeasure, we might as well abolish all commissions and let the governor be king."

McMath yesterday dictated the letter to commission members asking them to resign.

The operation of a race track at West Memphis would be most detrimental to the state of Arkansas. The revenue that the state would derive from the track's operation would be offset by the increased demand for policing and public welfare. Law enforcement in West Memphis already leaves much to be desired.

"The action of the commission cannot be justified on the ground that the operation of the track is dependent upon a favorable vote by the people in Crittenden county. A local option election on this question in Crittenden county would be a farce."

McMath did not elaborate on the references to West Memphis law enforcement or to Crittenden county elections.

The governor has said that if the commissioners ignore his request to resign, he would not reappoint them. Most of their terms end in February.

300 Cases of Strange Disease

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (AP) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's public information office today said about 300 cases of hemorrhagic fever have been diagnosed among Allied troops in Korea since July.

The PIO did not say whether any of the victims had died.

The surgeon general's office in Washington said Nov. 8 that there had been 198 diagnosed cases of the fever, with 25 deaths, among American troops through the first week in November.

The office said the disease apparently had been brought to the battlefield by ailing Chinese Red troops.

It marked the launching of the W. C. Handy Foundation for The Blind, Inc., a nationwide organization with a problem of rehabilitation, social service and medical aid among needy negro blind.

Bobcats Slam Smackover by a 26-0 Score

Hope took a second district victory last night at Hammons Stadium defeating a stubborn Smackover eleven 26 to 0 before a handful of shivering fans.

Orville Bright was the big gun of the Hope offense scoring the first touchdown on a 41 yard sprint through the middle and kicked extra point to give the Bobcats a 7-0 lead.

And it wasn't long before he broke loose again, this time for 70 yards and a touchdown. Shortly before the half he raced 63 yards to paydirt only to have the play called back and Hope penalized.

After a scoreless third period Jimmy Dan Baber started tossing passes and hit Jim Yocom for 10 yards and a touchdown. Bright kicked point and Hope led 20-0 early in the fourth period.

Although hard fighters all the way the Bucks were never really in the ball game. They could move in midfield but the stellar Hope line pushed them back when they got in scoring distance.

Bright chewed up 225 yards rushing for the Bobcats while Taber, Smackover's best, had a net total of 37.

Hope made 20 first downs to 9 for Smackover. The Bobcats picked up to 58 for the visitors. Hope passed a total of 369 yards from rushing 10 times, completed 4. Smackover tried 16, completed 4, had 3 intercepted. Hope drew 8 penalties for 90 yards and Smackover 6 for 70 yards. Hope fumbled one time but recovered. Smackover fumbled 3 times, recovered only once.

Republicans to Court Vote in South

Little Rock, Nov. 17 (AP) — The Republican party is going to court the southern ballot in 1952, says its national chairman, and the presidential and vice presidential candidates will be playing Romeo.

Guy Gabrielson the chairman told a news conference here yesterday: "If I have anything to say about it, I will insist that the candidates come below the Mason-Dixon line in campaigning."

Earlier, Gabrielson told the Arkansas Republican central committee at a luncheon that "no political party in the history of the nation has ever been presented with more vital issues than the Republican party today."

He attacked the Democrats and President Truman and said that the 1952 GOP program would be built around "extravagance in federal spending" by Democrats.

Gabrielson said issues that probably will come up during the campaign include higher taxes, inflation and higher prices, the "sell-out of China to the Communists," and "incompetence" in the federal government.

The chairman said that the party is counting on the election of Pratt C. Remmel, to stimulate "our accelerated campaign" to build a strong two-party system in the South. Remmel defeated incumbent Mayor Sam Wassell to become the first Republican mayor of Little Rock in 61 years.

"The South no longer is solid," said Gabrielson. "True Democrats are poles apart from Truman Democrats at Washington in political philosophy and political morality."

BRADLEY IN ROME

People Should Catalogue All the Good Things of Life for Those Rainy Day Blues

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP) — Life sometimes exasperates people so much they exclaim impulsively, "I almost wish I were dead!"

Against such rainy days they should write down a list of all the things they really would miss if they were out of this world.

Then, when they felt bad, they could pull out their own catalogue of personal pleasures, read it over — and feel better.

A few things would be on every person's list. But each would have some items that would be the private fruits of his own lifetime.

Here's one man's tentative index: The relief of taking off a pair of tight shoes after a long hard day.

The ecstasy of spring and autumn.

The poetry of Emily Dickinson and the soaring prose of perfume and corset ads in lady fashion magazines.

The wonderful windows of fifth avenue.

The scandal of a cockroach in somebody else's kitchen.

A letter from my mother, full of the phrases that bring back home and childhood.

An envelope from the bureau of internal revenue, saying I overpaid my taxes (you can dream can't you?).

Comic strips and murder mystery books.

The splendor of cathedrals and the quiet of lonely country churches.

By the name of the one you love in winter snow with a twig.

The shock of a cold needle shower.

The cleanliness of new sheets.

Joe DiMaggio knock a home run.

UN Agrees to Chinese Buffer Zone Proposal

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 17 (AP) — The U. N. command, in a dramatic move to end the cease-fire deadlock, today offered to accept the Communist buffer zone proposal — if an armistice is signed within 30 days. The Communists indicated they might agree.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho told United Nations negotiators the U. N. plan "seems in the main to be in accordance with our principles."

The Reds promised to study the proposal overnight and "commit" further when the subcommittee working on the cease-fire line issue meet again at 11 a. m. Sunday (9 p. m. EST Saturday) in Panmunjom.

Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodges, chief U. N. subcommittee delegate, told the Communist negotiators Saturday that the U. N. Allies will accept the Red proposal to fix a tentative cease-fire line along the present battle front. But he made it clear the line will become permanent only if all other armistice terms are agreed upon within 30 days after the proposal is accepted by the full five-member armistice delegations.

If no armistice is signed before the deadline, then a new cease-fire line would have to be fixed, Hodges said.

"We don't see any reason why the Communists wouldn't accept the latest U. N. proposal to settle the buffer zone issue," said Lt. Col. Howard S. LeVie, official U. N. command spokesman. "We made it all in all sincerity and with the expectation that it would be accepted."

He said the immediate Communist reply came "much faster than we would have expected."

After Lee indicated the Reds might agree to the U. N. proposal, Hodges suggested that staff officers of both sides meet at 10 a. m. Sunday to start working out the line of battle contact which would become the tentative cease-fire line.

Lee did not respond to the 10 a. m. meeting suggestion but replied: "I have received your proposal in writing and heard your explanation. Since we have yet to make a full study of your proposal I cannot answer. But I will give you our comment on your proposal tomorrow."

The United Nations plan demands clear-cut assurance from the Reds that agreement on the tentative cease-fire line would not be an end to the shooting before a full armistice is signed.

"There is no question of a De facto cease-fire," LeVie said. "It will amount to ground, sea and air action to the extent determined by General Ridgway and his ground, sea and air commanders."

Snow Falls in Parts of State

Little Rock, Nov. 17 (AP) — Snow began falling at several points in northwest and north central Arkansas this morning.

Temperatures of around freezing and slightly below freezing were reported throughout the state last night, and it was just about as cold in the south sections as it was in the north.

In fact, Camden, in the south, was one of three points reporting minimum readings of 28 degrees, the state's low. Other 28-degree readings were reported at Batesville and Fayetteville.

Other minimum readings included: Arkadelphia 31, El Dorado 31, Little Rock 33, Pine Bluff 31, Walnut Ridge 29, Paragould 29, Fort Smith 31, Gilbert 30, Newport 29, Ozark 31, Texarkana 30.

Points which reported snow this morning included Fayetteville, Calico Rock, Gilbert Flippin and Cotter.

Allied Division Smashes Ahead in Surprise Push

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 17 (AP) — An Allied division supported by tanks and planes today smashed ahead nearly two miles in a surprise attack along a nine-mile front in central Korea.

"We caught the enemy by complete surprise," an Allied officer said. "They had no idea we were coming."

The U. N. command division jumped off shortly before dawn in a limited objective attack south-east of Kumsong, former Red supply base 30 miles north of parallel 38.

One U. N. battalion crossed the Pukhan river in assault boats in pre-dawn darkness and hit the unsuspecting Chinese in a soft spot.

The Allied spokesman said U. N. forces advanced so swiftly the Chinese had no chance to counter attack. At only one point did the Reds stand and fight. In this sector the Doughboys moved in with bayonets and grenades.

Allied artillery hurled dozens of shells into the Communist lines while big Patton tanks milled in the main to be in accordance with our principles.

The advance hit the enemy 18 miles in the west. U. N. infantrymen won back and advance positions lost to Reds Friday northward to Chonwon, 20 miles north of parallel 38. Allied troops attacked under cover of an artillery barrage shortly before dawn. Communists who had pushed United Nations defenders out of one hill position early Friday pulled back after putting up on light resistance, the Eighth Army reported. Presumably the Reds still hold two other hill positions seized in the Friday attack.

Other U. N. command troops counterattacked to regain the ground northwest of the Pukhan on the eastern front where they engaged in a fighting battle. The Reds threw a full battalion at Friday's attack, which drove United Nations units out of several positions.

In the air jets tangled Saturday for the first time in a week in northwestern Korea. One F-86 MIG-15 was damaged, Fifth Air force headquarters said.

About 35 swept-wing MIGs attacked 10 F-86 Sabre jets from 10,000 to 30,000 feet over Suifu. For minutes. The air force said Sabre jets returned safely to the base.

Four other MIGs made three passes at four propeller-driven F-51 Mustangs Saturday afternoon but the air force said none of the Allied planes was damaged.

Night-flying B-28 light bombers attacked Red airfields and destroyed cars despite bad flying conditions. B-28 Superforts dropped incendiary bombs on Red airfields under strictation at Namal and Taehung in northwestern Korea. The bombs threw up heavy anti-aircraft, but FEAF said all bombers returned safely.

New Tactics Needed

Dear Miss Dix: I have a son who is a widower with two spoiled daughters, aged 13 and 15. He is eight years older than I, well established, kind, considerate and everything I may expect of a husband at my age (I am 31). The difficulty is that the children are hostile to me.

My lack of men friends up this point indicates that I don't exactly "make friends and influence people." My parents were strict disciplinarians and when I finished school, it was in a community where the pupils were spanked. I have suggested that the girls should be spanked when they have been disobedient to me. I suppose that wasn't very tactful. However, their mother's people also seem to believe that what they need is a few whippings.

Their father and I have had many discussions on this point. He assures me I shall have complete authority as to discipline but I have pointed out that in the two years since their mother died he should have begun to exercise some. I don't relish the idea of being a cruel despot, and their father is reluctant to do the punishing, so I don't know whether to step into the situation or not.

K. L. S.

Answer: You are certainly adopting the very tactics that will drive these youngsters away from you, rather than drawing them closer. They are not necessarily spoiled, but have certainly been neglected through the long illness of their mother and in the years since her death. Kindness and good discipline is your keynote in trying to win them, and though you do not seem particularly equipped to, as you say, "make friends and influence people," it is never too late to learn. You need a more tolerant outlook on the world, to which you will find an amazing response. At this point in your life, rather you continue the rocky road you have traversed so far, expecting everyone to live up to the high standards by which you have lived, or you must make allowances for the faults and follies of your fellow men. On the decision rests the happiness or misery of your future.

You Can Be Happy

You have in prospect what may be a very happy marriage and home life. Your widower friend is a splendid man who can offer you the material things that make life pleasant and has a fine disposition to go along with it. If you can win his daughter's trust and affection, a happy life is assured.

How can you go about this? It is a matter for you to decide, but the important thing is to change your outlook. Details will follow easily. You must look upon these girls as motherless children at an age when girls most need the gentle but firm guiding hand of an understanding woman. Whinnies, be very assured, will gain you nothing but fervent dislike. You are an educated woman, use some of your knowledge in teaching these youngsters that the discipline imposed by loving parents is not the same as that applied simply for the sake of punishment itself.

I hope you can accomplish the difficult task of changing your tactics, and winning the love of the girls. They need you, and you certainly could use their youthful exuberance in doing down your own too-serious outlook on life.

Dear Miss Dix: For fifteen years illness last Sunday.

Her return last night was like another first night. Crowds surged in the street. A sign on the theater marquee said "Welcome Back, Judy." She was showered with flowers and telegrams at the end of the performance.

"It's quite overwhelming," she told her audience in an emotion choked voice. "I love you, I mean it."

I was married to a drunkard. I divorced him, then on his promise to reform, remarried him. After our remarriage he was worse than ever and I divorced him again. Now he promises faithfully he will stop drinking if I go back to him. I am supporting my children better than he was.

Answer: You certainly are a glutton for punishment, Ellen. Also a most credulous person. Two chances are enough for anyone. Unless you enjoy going through this marriage every few years, better keep the freedom you have.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 14 and have been going with a 16-year-old boy for about five months. Last Sunday was my birthday and he gave me a lovely gift. His birthday will be here shortly and I wondered if I should give him a gift. We both go to high school and do not earn much money.

ELSI E.

Answer: It will be very thoughtful, and entirely appropriate, for you to give your boy friend a birthday gift. It need not be expensive, in fact, a costly present would be bad taste. If you are good at handicraft, why not make him something? A knitted tie, socks or gloves.

Dear Miss Dix: My parents are very fine people and I know they have my happiness and well being at heart, but they are very strict. Consequently, I have been working away from home for the past two years. I am 22. I have fallen in love with a boy 24 who is a fine person but unfortunately likes to drink too much. I have gone out with other boys, but always come back to this one. My parents object to him. I don't want to marry unwisely, but I do feel that we are truly in love.

HESSIE M.

Answer: Strict parents are the bane of a teenager's life, but it's amazing how the principles of integrity, loyalty and discipline mark the pattern of decent living for these youngsters. Though they may rebel against some of the rules, the ideals stay with them through life. Even though you dearly love your sweetheart, you appreciate the trouble that lies ahead if you marry a drunkard. To say that your marriage to this man would be unwise is an understatement. It will be stark tragedy! No woman lives a more miserable, degrading life, than the wife of a habitual drinker. If your friend drinks too much now, Bessie, he'll be far worse after he marries.

You parents may be old-fashioned, but if you want a good marriage to be assured it will be founded on old-fashioned principles, rather than on new-fangled theories.

would get a "play by play description" at the forthcoming hearings. "King refused to answer 'yes' or 'no' to questions whether other individuals in the justice department would be involved. But he said:

"This is just the first individual, or matter, that we have taken up in the tax division."

The Caudle firing was the latest in a series of some 26 suspensions or firings in the wake of the committee's tax investigations. All previous ones, however, have been in the bureau of internal revenue. Six of them were collectors, of whom two have been indicted for bribery and other misconduct. As head of the justice department's tax division, Caudle was responsible for prosecution of tax cases developed by the internal revenue bureau, which collects federal taxes.

Another Top U. S. Criminal Is Arrested

Denver, Nov. 17 (AP) — Raymond Edward Young, listed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as one of the 10 most wanted fugitives in the nation, was arrested in Denver last night.

George Burton, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office, said the 39-year-old Young offered no resistance and admitted his identity.

Young, wanted in Los Angeles, was arrested in a bakery where he worked nights loading bread on trucks. He told FBI agents he had been in Denver since December of 1948 under the name of Donald Sherman and worked days as a motorcycle messenger for a mortuary.

Burton said Young was wanted for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution and was charged in a Los Angeles warrant with burglary and assault with a deadly weapon.

Young, a native of Lincoln, Neb., was eluded among the "most wanted" only last Monday. He replaced Morey Vernon King in the "top 10" kind, accused of slaying his wife in San Luis Obispo, Calif., in 1947, was picked up at Philadelphia 18 days ago.

Young was held in the Denver city jail today.

Burton said that on August 31, 1948, Young was among 51 men taken from the California State prison at Soledad to help fight a forest fire near Black Mountain, east of San Luis Obispo. He was serving a five-year — to life sentence for burglary and was known as a model prisoner. The next morning he was gone.

Then, Burton reported, an acquaintance of Young in Los Angeles reported that Young pulled a pistol and fired six shots at him on Sept. 22, 1948, in a fight. The acquaintance was not wounded.

The Denver FBI agent said a man identified as Young wounded a Los Angeles police officer on Oct. 26, 1948. The officer stopped a car on a Los Angeles street for a routine check. The driver struck him and then shot him in the leg and escaped on foot. He was identified as the wanted man.

The car, Burton continued, was stolen and articles found in it, including a revolver and ammunition, were identified as loot from Los Angeles burglaries.

The government agent said

Drug Underworld Raided in Capital

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP) — Narcotics police combed out the drug underworld of the nation's capital in a series of raids last night, arresting at least 30 "top men."

The announcement was made by Boyd M. Martin, capital area narcotics supervisor, as raids begun by more than 50 district policemen, deputy marshals and federal narcotics agents continued into early morning hours.

Martin said those arrested were independent "dope pushers," many, he said, got supplies of heroin in the work and parceled it out to small peddlers here.

Also, he said, they were supply men for illegal drug sellers in Baltimore, Md., and Richmond and Norfolk, Va., all near Washington.

Martin declined to tell newsmen how many more drug sellers were being sought, but it was indicated the raids were not ended. He said his department and others had been gathering evidence for the raids since July 27. By that date, Martin said, major dope operators in the District of Columbia area had been catalogued.
